SMC, Now 75 Years Old, Elects Three New Officers

Southern Missionary College, as such, is not 75 years old, but starting February 20, 1892, it began operation as an institution at Graysville, Tennessee. It is now in its 75th year as an institution and its 50th year as a liberal arts college, either two or four years.

To celebrate this important occasion, we feel that it would be most appropriate to have quite a few activities planned for the entire year. An honorary committee has been appointed to give suggestions on what ceremonies to have, what to do, whom to honor, etc.

The first event honored the pioneers at Graysville, who started the Graysville School. Dr. K. M. Kennedy, head of SMC's education department, was the speaker. Dr. Dewitt Bowen, SMC Alumni Association president, presented a plaque to the church commemorating the site of the founding.

There will be a working committee on campus to carry out these suggestions. The honorary committee consists of: Dr. Lynn H. Wood, co-chairman; Elder K. A. Wright, co-chairman; Elder Robert H. Pierson, Dean Walter B. Clark, Elder Ralph S. Watts.

Just as your ALUMNI BULLETIN went to press, the SMC Board of Trustees elected the following: Dr. Wilbert Schneider, president; Dr. Frank Knittel, academic dean; and Mr. Delmar Lovejoy, dean of student affairs.

Dr. Schneider comes to us from PUC, where he has been academic dean. He replaces Dr. C. N. Rees who suffered a stroke in November.

Dr. Knittel, vice-president of student affairs at Andrews University, replaces Dr. Cassell as academic dean. Dr. Cassell will fill the position of academic dean left vacant by Dr. Schneider at PUC.

Mr. Lovejoy will be the dean of student affairs, replacing Mr. Gordon Madgwick who is to be dean of student affairs at CUC. Mr. Lovejoy has been physical education instructor at SMC for the past two years.

Homecoming Plans Develop

The Difference At SMC

Dr. Wilbert M. Schneider, President
SOUTHERN MISSIONARY COLLEGE

Education without relevance and significance is virtually meaningless. Although defined by Ellen G. White as the harmonious development of hand, heart and mind, little thought is sometimes given to its full meaning, and the expression may, therefore, become a cliché as used to define Adventist Education. At Southern Missionary College "the difference" must continue to prevail if graduates are to develop a wholesome philosophy resulting in significant future service.

Secular education in general is preparing the student for a passport to an urban society but leaving untouched the question as to what kind of an individual the graduate ought to be. Providing for one's temporal needs must be considered a secondary motive in Adventist education. By our modern standards of education, Jesus would probably be unable to qualify for a high school diploma. Yet, it is a fact that no other man has ever had such peace or joy within himself nor such mastery over the problems of life. In contemplating the life of Christ, we are

Miss Mabel Wood Appointed Editor

Miss J. Mabel Wood, associate professor of music emeritus, has been appointed editor of the SMC Alumni Bulletin, according to Dr. Wilbert M. Schneider, SMC's president.

Miss Wood

Miss Wood, who holds a B.A. degree from Union College, Lincoln, Nebr., and the M.A. degree from the University of Nebraska, retired on June 1, from her full-time music-teaching career.

She has been working part time in the college relations office, which directs the affairs of the Alumni Association, for the past year. Previously, she has served several times as an Alumni officer.

Her duties will include correspondence with the alumni about news for the Bulletin, editing the Bulletin, and keeping the addresses up-to-date. Any correspondence about these items should be addressed to her.

Miss Wood is a graduate of Southern Junior College and has spent 40 years in denominational service, mainly in the field of music. Eighteen of her 40 years were at SMC. She has also taught at Southwestern Junior College and Union College.

Dr. Schneider said that "we welcome Miss Wood to this new duty on our staff, and we are happy that she can serve in this capacity."

SMC ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Every member of the SMC Alumni Association is cordially invited to attend the Annual Homecoming that will be held on the Southern Missionary College campus the weekend of October 20 and 21. This Homecoming will celebrate SMC's 75th year as an institution.

Highlights of the program will be outstanding speakers from among denominational workers for the Friday night and Sabbath meetings and the Voice of Prophecy quartet for special music on Friday night and at the Sabbath church services. They will also give a concert on Sabbath afternoon.

The college is planning to have a Lyceum program on "Trekking the Tibetan Border" on Saturday night. Alumni will be guests of the college for this event.

Of course, the annual business meeting will be held immediately following the supper on Saturday night at which time the members will be college guests. For those of you who may have to bring your children on this trip, the Alumni Association will have a group to supervise them for supper and pictures during the Alumni supper and business meeting.

As you probably know, Southern Missionary College has finished its new administration building, and you will want to see it. It will be included on a tour of the campus on Sunday morning, conducted by Charles Fleming, Jr., SMC business manager.

You will notice a ballot on the back page of the BULLETIN this time, and we would appreciate your filling it out and mailing it soon. We need your ballots so that we can get a full representation of your wishes for these officers.

You'll come, and let's have a good time!

THE DIFFERENCE

impressed with the quality of his education, by the kind of person he was, by how he experienced life, and not by what he possessed or what he could do vocationally.

Any adequate philosophy of education today must be chiefly concerned with what kind of person one is, not by what he can do or what he can buy of goods and pleasures. The graduate of Southern Missionary College should be adequate to life's problems. This is the crux of our concern as we structure the entire educational program dealing with the spiritual, social, and mental processes. The student as a child of God must master all emotional response to the problem stimuli inherent in life such as pain, ill health, death, ingratitude, injustice, failure, success, adulation, fame, money, ambition and all other stresses that arise from personal relationships. Paul speaks of this experience to the Galatians as follows: "But the fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance . . ." This adequacy is of what Christ speaks when He says, ". . . My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you . . . I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly . . . In the world ye shall have tribulations but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." The average citizen struggling under the burdens of modern living—its tension structures and "Moral morassity"—may be observed as having dismally failed in that he has been overcome by the world.

It is difficult to achieve an adequate life of emotional maturity and righteous judgment except as one experiences the power of God through faith. The processes of logic, philosophy, concept, rationality and definition are utterly incapable of providing the type of adequacy essential to life unless they are part of an individual's commitment to God. It is in knowing God through faith that enables man to feel adequate to life's experience.

The moral crisis in education demands that the Christian college campus serve as a bulwark against the erosion of Christian morals. There is a well-known educational limerick which runs: "Ram it in, jam it in, students' heads are hollow. Ram it in, jam it in, there is plenty more to follow." We make no apologies for emphasis on academic achievement. The explosion of knowledge may be understood when considering that factual information in virtually every academic discipline is doubling about every ten years. Obviously, it will be impossible to think of "mastery" of a field in terms of the percentage of facts within it which one keeps in mind. Although the acquirement of factual knowledge is exceedingly important to the student as he prepares for future service, we are not concerned with a program of education intended to produce fact-filled freaks. We must look beyond the facts for a reason to educate.

Relevance in Adventist education demands continued emphasis on man as a moral being intent to take his place in society as a responsible individual. We must shamefully confess that the goals of secular education have been geared more to the students' superficial physical needs than to the spiritual from which all significant social values are derived. This is obvious as we view with alarm the ever-increasing segment of society identified as alcoholics, speed-killers, adulterers, delinquents, criminals, addicts, neurotics, sophisticates and the mentally ill.

Adventist education cannot be too concerned with the conversion of the country's great riches to one's pleasure and prestige. The development of the great Christian values of morality, which Scripture identifies as the fruits of the spirit, is far more significant. The function of education must be moral if it is to achieve Christian ends. Without "the difference" it will not be possible to lead a bewildered humanity, wandering in a wilderness of licentious living, with heads crammed full of knowledge, empty souls and spirits faint, to a more abundant life with eternity as its goal.

In general, man no longer struggles with the elemental effort to live, yet there is a great need to find a focus in education that will lend form, purpose and order to student lives. We cannot be content with the trappings of life. Civilization to be meaningful must be higher than telephones and electric lights, automobiles and television sets. These inventions have revolutionized our way of life, but at the same time have become the false symbols of civilization which may be considered the pagan idols of modern times.

Perhaps we ought to express gratitude to our Heavenly Father who has through revelation of truth and the endowment of foresight encouraged the development of an educational system designed to teach this personal religious experience of knowing God. Yet, even in this system, we find students who refuse to accept the great principals of righteousness only to later experience the bitter failure of having sown the devil's seed.

These are years when students are exposed to apathy and cynicism. Often we detect a lack of purpose in the lives of students who are passively comfortable in our present affluent society. Nevertheless, we will continue to press forward in designing a program on the campus of Southern Missionary College which will encourage the student to drink deeply at the fountain of life, thus preparing him to meet the test of adequacy for life's demands.

We are deeply concerned in the students' commitments and the value judgments developed on this campus. The worth of every human being is of great concern to the faculty of your college. We wish to emphasize again and again that academic competence need not be sacrificed in favor of a thorough-going Christian faith. On the contrary, the two are harmonious requisites to good Christian development. Your college will remain alert to its responsibility of providing a competent Christian faculty always able to recognize "the difference" in genuine education.

President Says 'Thanks'

By LYNN SAULS

President Elect,

SMC Alumni Association

A big THANK YOU to those who participated in the recent Homecoming activities! I know that many of you, especially from the classes of '42 and '57, traveled long distances to meet with former friends, view at first hand the exciting changes taking place in the Valley, and sense anew the spirit of friendliness and dedication that still permeates the campus after all these years.

And a big THANK YOU to those who have voluntarily and upon request sent in newsy items about yourself, your work, and your family. The columns in the BULLETIN made possible by your responses have to a great degree helped fulfill the purpose listed first in the Association's Constitution—"To stimulate the spirit of fellowship and brotherhood among former graduates and students."

And THANKS to those who have directed young people to enroll at SMC. Our growth over the past ten years from 457 to 1206 has been due, not only to the evangelistic thrust in the Southern Union, but also to the way SMC's graduates have upheld the school in their contacts made within and without the Union. Actually, 357 of this year's student body come from faraway places.

And THANKS to you who have helped organize alumni chapters in various sectors of the globe. I appeal to you to locate and reclaim for Christ those former SMC graduates and students in your area who no longer enjoy Christian fellowship.

And THANKS to you who are supporting, not only morally but financially, the projects being undertaken by the Alumni Association. Various gift plans have been suggested and are being followed by different members. Some may want to become Centenier

Franz Calls for Educating The Heart at Homecoming

"The most important training at Southern Missionary College is the education of the heart for service," said Elder C. O. Franz, associate secretary of the General Conference, in speaking at the special Alumni Homecoming services at the Collegedale Church.

A graduate of SMC in the class of 1932, Elder Franz told the assembled alumni, students and community people, that "my first impression as a student here was one of courteous, Southern, Christian hospitality. The personal interest in me did much in forming my character."

Speaking on "Remembering," Elder Franz said that "heart training comes first at SMC now as it did when I was here. Its deans took time to encourage us as young, immature men and women. We had problems then, as you have them today, and the faculty helped us solve them.

"This College, in training for Christian character, for a liberal arts background, and in practical work, has molded lives whose work and imprint have been felt the world around."

Special music for the occasion was provided by the King's Heralds Quartet of the Voice of Prophecy. The quartet sang on Friday night, and one of the former members, Elder John Thurber, now educational secretary of the Texas Conference, gave the sermon.

Other activities of the weekend included a sacred concert on Sabbath afternoon by the King's Heralds Quartet assisted by SMC's Adelpian Quartet. There were approximately 2000 persons present to hear the musical groups.

The College and the Alumni honored Mr. B. F. Summerour of Norcross, Ga., who as a member of SMC's Board of Trustees, of the Executive Committee and of the Committee of 100, has rendered invaluable service and financial support to SMC.
